J. M. ATHERTON HIGH SCHOOL

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

A SENIOR'S FAREWELLS

To our pranks and our misdemeanors,
To our jokes and our glorious fun,
To our vaudeville, our play, and our dances,
To the rattle-brained things we've done,
 . . . A farewell with laughter.

To our losses as well as our triumphs
In our contests on court or on field,
To our rallies, our cheering, our athletes,
To our spirit, too dauntless to yield,
 . . . A farewell with sadness.

To the school with its record of service,
To the honor attending its name,
To the faculty, proud of its standards,
To ATHERTON, worthy of fame,
 . . . A farewell with love.

THANKS TO ATHERTON

It was an eventful day when we, the members of the class of 1954, first came to Atherton. True, no flags were flying, no bands were playing; but for us green fifteen-year-olds, venturing into a world of sophisticated seniors and lean football players, of geometry and Latin II, it was a momentous occasion. Before long our assimilation was complete. We slaved over Julius Caesar, were quoted in The Aerial's question boxes, played in the orchestra, and yelled and yelled as Atherton beat Male in a double overtime.

Weeks hurried by, and soon our dream of being juniors became a reality. We smiled indulgently upon our sophomore counterparts, fought the Civil War, played in our first varsity basketball game, made our carnival a huge success, and bought a white dress for the Honor Guard on class day.

At length there arrived that glorious day when we became seniors. We clowned at play practice, conquered Manual, wrote a thousand-word theme, and celebrated Atherton's thirtieth anniversary. Then suddenly we realized that June was just around the corner. We agonized over college entrance examinations, applied for jobs, and ordered graduation announcements.

And so, with many a backward glance but never a backward step, we have earned our reward for three years of hard work. Now we are about to step out into the world, well prepared by our teachers and advisers to assume adult responsibilities. In the years ahead we shall forget much, but we shall remember the essentials. We may forget the author of "To a Skylark," but we shall not forget the magic of poetry. We may forget the definition of a cosine, but we shall not forget how to think. We may forget historical data, but we'll remember the meaning of citizenship. We may even forget old friends, but we'll remember the value of friendship.

Thanks to Atherton, we are ready for the future.

ANN GRAFTON

At last we made it . . .

THE CURTAIN FALLS

The curtain falls. The applause is deafening. What's this? You got in late and want to know what the play was about? I'll be glad to tell you. Let's review the acts.

ACT I

Two hundred and eighty-three actors enter. It seems they are just registering at Atherton High School as sophomores. Through this year they vow they'll never live with all the homework and the new rules; but somehow they make it, and suddenly it's June.

ACT II

The opening scene shows our players again at J. M. A., this time as juniors. They renew old friendships and blow the dust from their books. Sounds dull? The climax is coming!

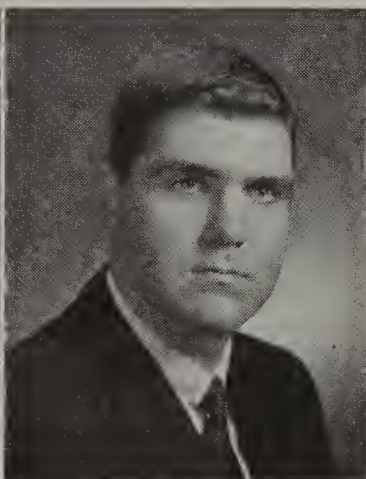

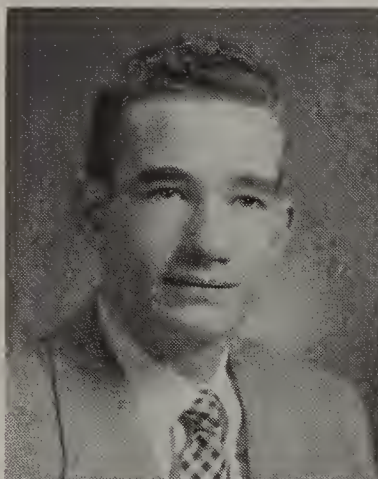

ACT III

Seniors at last! The first thing on the agenda—senior rings. Oh, what a day when those beautiful symbols of dignity and importance arrive! Hardly recovered from this thrill, the actors wait impatiently to see who will be chosen for the senior play. Opening night brings jitters, excitement, thrills, and success. Racing on breathlessly, our performers play their roles at sock hops, basketball and football games, vaudeville, thirtieth anniversary celebration, carnival, track meets, and class day. Then The Torch comes out. As the seniors turn its pages, they dreamily reminisce. But this is no time for dreaming; the end of the play is drawing near. The curtain rises on the climactic scene. To the triumphant strains of "Pomp and Circumstance," lovely girls in white formals, with red roses in their arms and a few tears in their eyes, and handsome boys in summer tuxedos, with dry eyes but faintly regretful smiles, march down the long aisles of the Memorial Auditorium. As each actor crosses the stage to receive his diploma, he plays the stellar role in a major performance. One play—with two hundred and eighty-three stars! The curtain falls; the play is over.

. . . what's this younger generation coming to? . . .

TO THE YOUNGER GENERATION

We toast you, Juniors, one and all,
As you take your place on high!
Now don't pretend you're sorrowful
To tell our class good-bye.

We can't suppress a smile or two
To see your trumped-up woe—
Admit you're glad we're moving on,
So you can run the show!

And, Sophomores, we toast you, too!
You've had a weary climb;
You've served as butt of all our jokes
And not complained one time.

Keep smiling, II's! We'd like to say
Next year your grief will stop—
At least you'll leave the bottom rung,
Though others claim the top.

. . . let's get together . . .

SCHOLARSHIP, SERVICE, SELF-RESPECT

“Scholarship, Service, Self-Respect”—What do these words mean, and why were they chosen for our school motto? Scholarship is knowledge acquired through study, that enthusiastic application of the mind that drives a student to read three books when only one is required. Does scholarship have a place in the modern community? Any doctor, minister, lawyer, teacher, or newspaper editor will provide an adequate reply to this question. Every manual worker depends in some way upon the educated man or woman. Scholarship gives us the tools for leading and inspiring minds.

The other two words in our motto are interdependent; they are links in an unbroken chain. Service is our purpose in life, and we grow in character as we learn to place the needs of others before our own. Service teaches us understanding and patience. We earn the love and respect of our fellows in proportion to our willingness to serve. When we find our work in life and perform it unselfishly, our self-respect should grow. However, we gain self-respect also through sportsmanship, honor, and moral courage. When we can stand firmly for what we think is right, regardless of consequences, we have a just reason for self-respect.

With these three significant words as a guide for the past thirty years, Atherton has achieved a place in our community. Now is the time in our lives to pause, to evaluate ourselves, and to recognize our failings. Now is the time to determine that our lifetime guide will be our school motto, “Scholarship, Service, Self-Respect.”

. . . let's go Rebel team! . . .

WE'RE FROM ATHERTON

Graduation . . . leaving Atherton . . . next fall . . . college . . . These are everyday words now, on every senior's lips. They come up in classrooms, over cokes, on dates. We speak them frequently—too frequently! Juniors and sophomores smile and bear with us, for they know as well as we that this is, as one student so aptly termed it, our “swan song.”

Let's forget those words for a moment. Let's backtrack through days, weeks, months. Step back into October. There was a haunting, melancholy fragrance of burning leaves then and an elusive freshness in the air. A crew-cut football squad practiced unceasingly in Cherokee Park. The games . . . Who can ever forget those struggles? In spite of bitter defeats, Atherton fought back each time with renewed Rebel spirit. Then, suddenly, the climax—a chance to break a jinx, a chance to prove Atherton determination. Do you remember that Manual game? Can you experience again the enthusiasm, the joyous relief expressed in that never-to-be-forgotten victory cry, “No More Big Four—Rebels Are Here to Stay?” Do you recall the glowing faces of your friends as you stood in the milling, cheering crowd around the players' bus? Did you notice the father of an Atherton athlete standing in the background? Perhaps you heard him say quietly, as if he were thinking of his own high school days, “That's it, son. That's the way we did it.” You saw and heard and understood. This gentleman, although he had not attended Atherton, was a part of it. His son, the team, everyone in that crowd, was a part of Atherton. And you, you were a part, too. Football, basketball, tennis, or track, win or lose—we voiced our spirit for all to hear:

“WE'RE FROM ATHERTON—

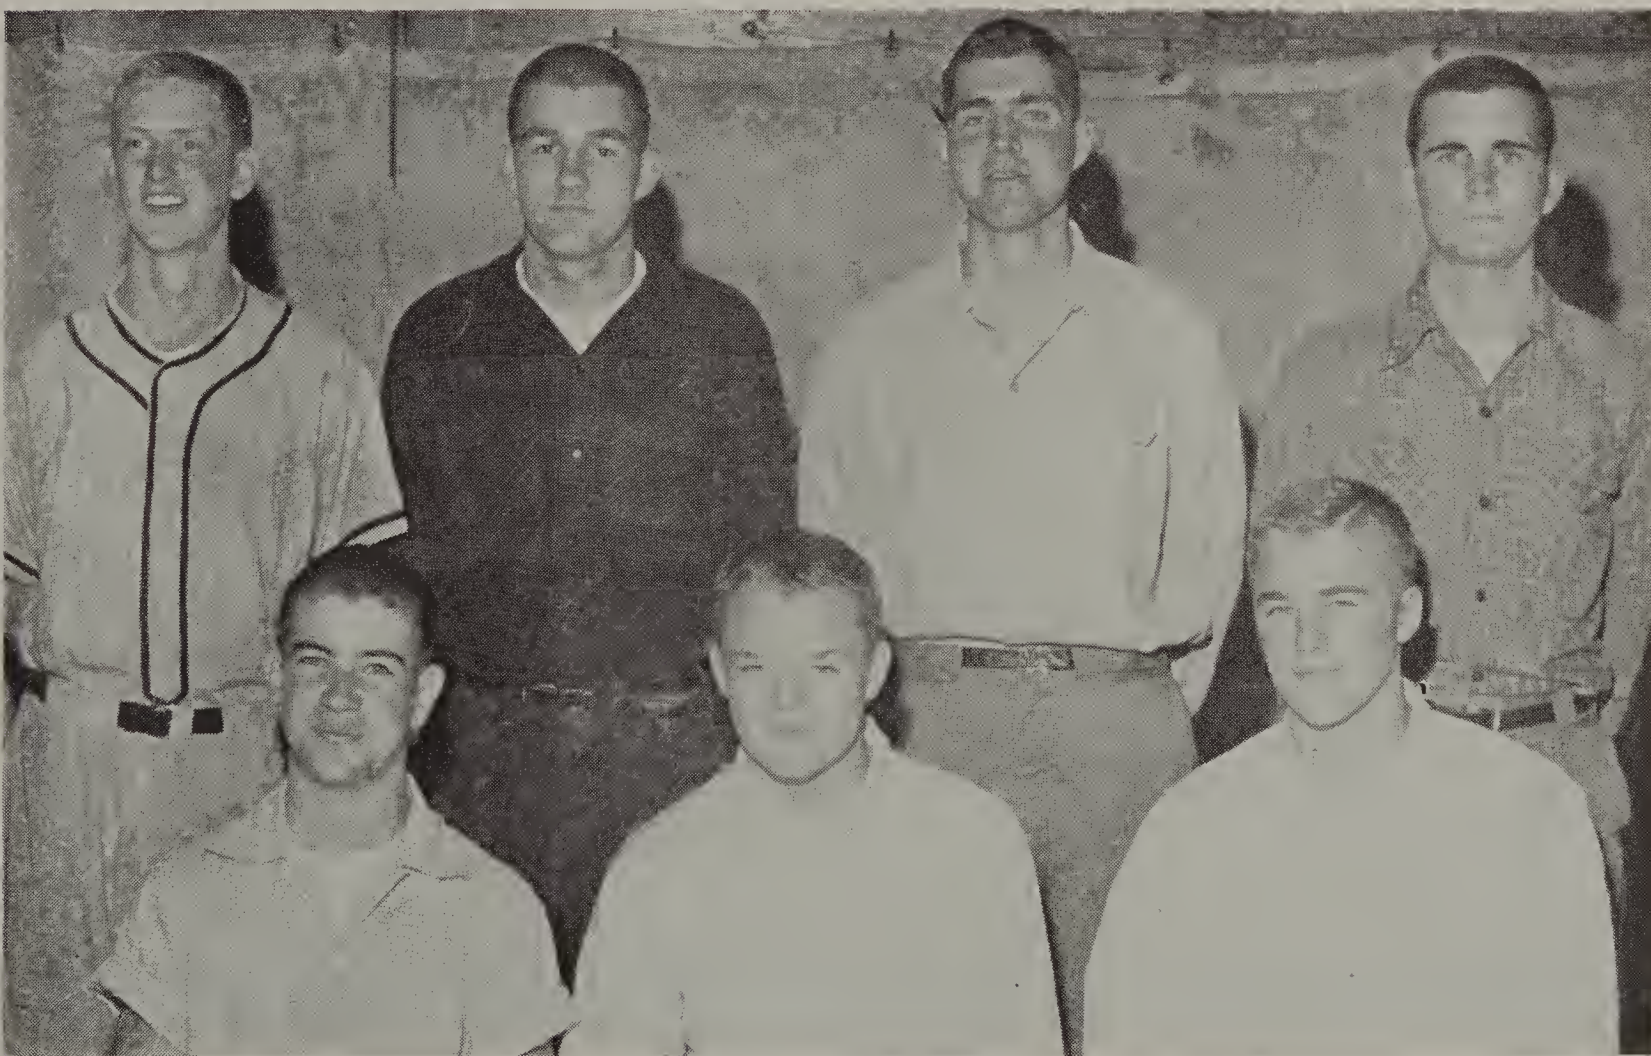

COULDN'T BE PROUDER!”

From DEDICATION ODE

And still,
With Heart and Brain, with Thought and Will,
We are building the School,
We, who by your great care
Have gained this Mansion fair.
Stronger than hammer's ring,
Your children's voices sing;
Vaster the music flows
Through all the air, and grows
To softer, deeper power
With every ripening hour.
We of the Coming Race, the Standard Bearers, sing,
In laughter, speech, or silence, as we go
Joyously to and fro
Through this enchanted Place.
Fairer through all the years
Our Dream of Life appears.
For still—
With Heart, and Brain, and Will,
We are building the School,
And we pledge ourselves this hour,
With all our strong Youth's power,
True to God's rule,
To build the Living School.

Can't remember Shakespeare's plays—
My French is down to "parlez-vous";
Can't recall one science term
Or those gym stunts I used to do.

Can't remember history dates
Or why on earth x equals y ;
Can't even sew a decent seam
Or state the formula for lye.

Geometry's forgotten lore,
(How many angles in a square?)
But I remember A. H. S.
For friends and fun and laughter there.

LOUISVILLE, MAY 3, 1979

TEN CENTS

CELEBRITIES GATHER FOR GALA CLASS REUNION

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, May 3, 1979.—Last night, Derby Eve, things were humming in the heart of Kentucky's bourbon land. In the Pioneer Room of the magnificent Carmichael Hotel, the big event was the twenty-fifth reunion of the class of 1954 of the J. M. Atherton High School, the most distinguished institution of learning in the South. The startlingly original decor of Louisville's newest and most luxurious hostelry is the work of Kleinman-Benton, Interior Decorators. Of special interest are Bob Sensbach's striking murals. The dinner with its elegant appointments was planned and furnished by Marilyn Kurz, heir to the fabulous meat-packing fortune.

Rudd Emcees As Usual

Atherton celebrities, with their husbands and wives, packed the spacious Pioneer Room to its capacity. At the speakers' table popular William Rudd, President of the Ruddy-Buddy Burger chain of restaurants, was in excellent form as master of ceremonies. At his left sat Cherrie Jenkins, genial publicity chairman of the Louisville Chamber of Commerce. David Comfort, principal of Louisville Collegiate School for Girls (?) discussed Rosanne Taylor's Pulitzer prize novel, The Keyhole, with Bob Neal, the happy radio-commercial warbler. Marilyn Field made a quick trip from the Met to lead her old friends in songs from Jay Kaplan's latest musical extravaganza, Mid-Mediterranean. Kaplan's hit, sold out two years in advance, stars Camie Goodwyn and Doug Ray, with Dick Block directing.

New Gimmick Arouses Interest

A number of Atherton notables were centers of attention. Alan Poziter demonstrated his useful invention, a wrinkler for wrinkle-proof ties. "Murderous Mike" Kaplan, world famous wrestler, rippled his muscles for the old maids present. Jim Debnam focused his cosmic-powered telescope on gowns by Clo Owens, who has caused a furor this season by bringing back the strapless styles of the Fifties. Fred Ade, first in the class of '54 to achieve the million-dollar mark, lit his cigar with a ten-dollar bill as he discussed the price of sheet music with Bob Shackleton, owner of Durlauf Music Company. Susan Fisher, daring acrobat of Berman and Bierberg Circus, contributed to the mischievous monkeyshines of the evening. Jack "Touchdown Kid" Rigby boasted of his unconquered football team at Woodstown High in New Jersey. Mary Leigh Baskett described the antics of the ten Atherton students whom she had entertained during spring vacation at her luxurious hotel, The Blue Water, in Fort Lauderdale. A special bowl of Wheaties was served to Cap Caudill, Big League baseball champion, who predicts his team, the Corn Flakers, will win the World Cereal.

Raeuchle Displays Award

At one table, talk concerned Barbara Raeuchle's pocket-sized typewriter, her award for having been chosen, at a national convention, the secretary with the cutest legs. Everyone congratulated Henry Markstone Johnson III, who has just received his Ph.D. in Basket-Weaving. Harry Mayfield, President of Mayfield Maple Maypole Manufacturing Monopoly, busily counted the money that had poured in from a complete sell out the day before. Ed Wallace, top performer at the Stork Club, gave a realistic simulation of a cat playing a banjo. Before each show Ed laps up a saucer of milk. Apparently this is necessary for a fine performance. His priceless banjo is the masterpiece of J. Lancaster and Sons, makers of superior stringed instruments and superstrung yo-yo's. In the midst of the fun Dick Burnett said good night, explaining that he had to be home by 10:30. Pat Payne left with him to move his bicycle, which he had inadvertently parked in the entrance to the garage.

Admiring Murmur Greets Model

Each new arrival brought memories of the good old days. There was a murmur as Donna Hutcherson, Powers model, glided into the room. Margie McFarlane made a dramatic entrance with her red-bearded husband from Bulgaria. Stuart Bohne, President of Colonel Motors, and his left-hand man, designer-producer-spark-plug-sparker "Rastus" Ewing, arrived at the roof-garden landing strip in their company's latest model Starfire Strato-copter. George Mercke came up from his ranch in New Mexico with his shining Derby hopeful, Chrome Dome.

Other Notables Attend Reunion

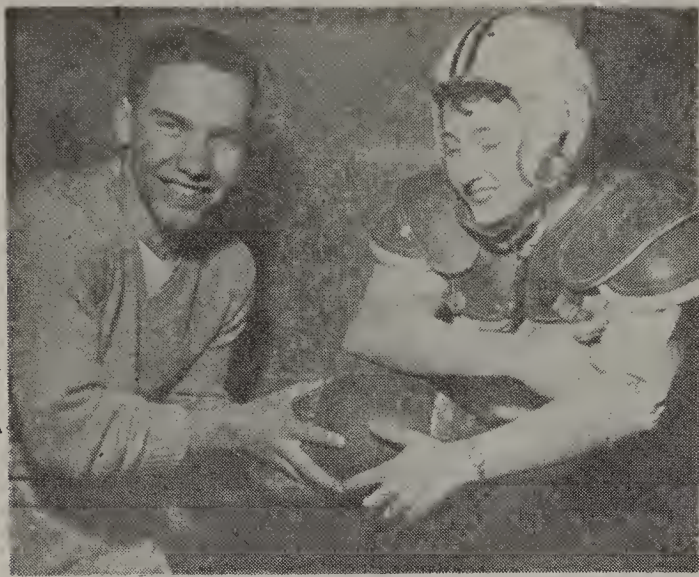

Bettysue Gibson, whose lovely orbs are seen everywhere on "Irene Ivash" posters, was indeed a sight for sore eyes. Shirley Montgomery, just back from a closed meeting of the Inter-Planetary Committee on Space Flight, gave this correspondent permission to quote her as follows: "Everything will be all right unless the worst happens." The only informally dressed person at the banquet was Goose Thompson, who came straight from the game between his team, the Globe Trotters, and the Venus All-Stars.

Messages Arrive From Far Places

Various pursuits kept many former Athertonians away. Kay Eda Brockman and Pat Melanson, somewhere in the great plains of Mercury searching for the lost explorer, Bill Owens, sent their regards to everyone. Jane Lawrence was unable to attend, as she could not find a sitter for her turtle. Sue Ann Mayhall could not leave her duties as postmistress in Alaska. Also in a far-off land was Martha Ford, who has received world acclaim for her new method of teaching Saharan camels to walk. Ewel Cornett was not exactly absent, but the throng of beautiful women surrounding him made him inaccessible. It seems that Ewel and Carol Neuner have invented an irresistible perfume which, for security reasons, has not yet been released. Diane Coleman is now the toast of Spain, where she has made the ballet more popular than the bullfight.

The party broke up early, early enough for the class of '54 to make the first race at Churchill Downs.

WE CAN'T TAKE IT WITH US

We, the graduating class of 1954, school of thoughtlessness, state of confusion, being of unreasonable age and unsound minds, do make, publish, and declare this our last will and testament.

We direct that all our debts and expenses incurred while we were residing at Atherton be paid out of the pockets of the junior class. We divide the schoolhouse and lot, situated at 1418 Morton Avenue, together with the mangled chairs and beat-up lockers, among the remaining students in equal shares, as tenants in common. The remainder of our estate is to be given out as stated hereby:

Jim Debnam bequeathes his telescope to Mr. Cox for finding the stars of next year's senior play.

Pat Cranmer bestows her quiet manner on Nancy Blakey.

Mike Solomon donates his messy notebook to Miss Bohon with the hope that she can find his lost homework.

Tom Young, true son of the South, leaves his Southern charm to Jim Fultz.

Larry Holt is to become the new owner of "Baron" Keeling's Bermuda shorts.

Tom Fisher gives his big brown eyes to Nancy Klein.

Roger Dalton contributes the Student Council gavel to anyone who's willing to be a crazy campaigner.

Shirley Montgomery gives the midnight oil she didn't burn to Neal McFerran.

Donna Holthouser bestows her peaches-and-cream complexion on any chocolate-loving junior.

Lucy Stansbury and Wayne Ashcraft leave their cars on Morton Avenue for some poor soul to haul away.

Lecker Vance wills his second-, fourth-, and sixth-period studies to Bill Campbell.

Martha Banta hates to leave Dick Cady. Oh well, vacations come!

Ann Grafton leaves her curly hair to Dot Ashley.

Jane Anderson and Rheta Tharp allow all Atherton girls to have open season on Eastern boys.

Doug Ray's winning smile goes to Hugh Green.

Ida Lee Fuller and Cherrie Jenkins donate their sunny dispositions to anyone with the blues.

Karl Bottigheimer leaves Miss Duerson to Stanley Garfein.

Don Plamp and John Clancy leave. Hurrah!

Toby Cooper is to inherit Diane Coleman's beat-up ballet shoes.

Beverly House is willing to leave the Heath Bars in the lunchroom to those who have first lunch if they'll save some for the characters in third lunch.

Alvin Shein confers his lone male position in the F. T. A. to any boy brave enough to replace him.

Marilyn Lyon leaves peace and quiet to Mr. "J. C." Powell.

Joan Reagin leaves her peanut butter in the lunchroom with the warning . . . ?

Tom Shaver and Bill Jansing take their fiddles with them. Thank goodness!

Marilyn Novak bequeathes her musical ability to Nancy Lee Dixon.

Mr. Willinger will be the proud owner of Pat Payne's flaming locks.

Mary Redford Stites bestows her contralto voice on Kate Kirwan.

Pat Fish leaves her double helping of mashed potatoes to Mrs. Sherry.

Judy Simon bequeathes a small fortune to Miss Wheeler for having filled out all seven of her college applications.

Betty Ackerson donates her recently-lost ten pounds to Jo Drescher.

Barbara and Shirley Norheimer leave their look-alike clothes to Ethel and Emory Strauss.

Alan Pozitzer bequeathes his Moon-Cleaners hat to Stuart Duncan.

Charles Shaw resigns the drum-major spot to that tall and handsome bandman, Tom Shelton.

Don Renau gives his used bottle of valve oil to next year's cornet soloist.

Peggy Maddox wills Pogo to Carole Caudill.

Thelma Shapero and Shirley Sosowsky leave homeroom X to any devils who want to torment Mr. Cox.

Gilbert Emenegger donates his hair dye to John Bacigalupi, Jr.

Martha Ford gives her camel walk to Polly Jacobs.

Camie Goodwyn bequeathes her pony tail to Ora Lerman.

Pat Melanson contributes her swimming ability to Emma Lee Bowers.

Bill Rudd's "All American Boy" title goes to Rollin Burhans.

Walter Faison gives the lunchroom records to Lou Ann Murphy, next year's lucky disk jockey.

Allen Purnell offers his sausage to the hungriest sophomore.

Wynn Paul leaves his gun collection to any unreconstructed Southerner.

Dave Comfort leaves all his used casts to Henry Faurest.

Bob Shackleton donates his curly blond hair to any girl who's looking for a new hair-do.

Jo Ann Bassett and Sandra Walte will their melodious voices to Fanny Manning and Dodie Osbourne, who can't carry a tune either.

Don Haverstock reluctantly leaves Jane Ulferts and her baby-blue convertible to some lucky underclassman.

Herb Berman gives his report card to Miss Whittall who begged for it last semester.

Jay Kaplan leaves his baton for Mr. Hoon's next prodigy.

Jack Rigby donates his "way with women" to Bunny Solomon, another Casanova.

Mary Lou Stouder gives her nickname, "Schmoo," to anyone who fits the description.

Mark Johnson won't leave his wit, because he plans to use it later.

George Mercke bequeathes his ten-gallon hat to Elizabeth Brooks.

Larry Jelsma wills his "fins" to Bill Grubbs for further use next year.

Gordon King gives his persuasive voice to any boy who wants to make the girls swoon.

Jack Thompson bestows his athletic prowess on Lennie Silliman, who seems to be doing very well without it.

The Florida vacationers leave their road maps to next year's adventurers.

Stanley Berman and Bonnie Handmaker hand their apparent bliss down to some feuding steadies.

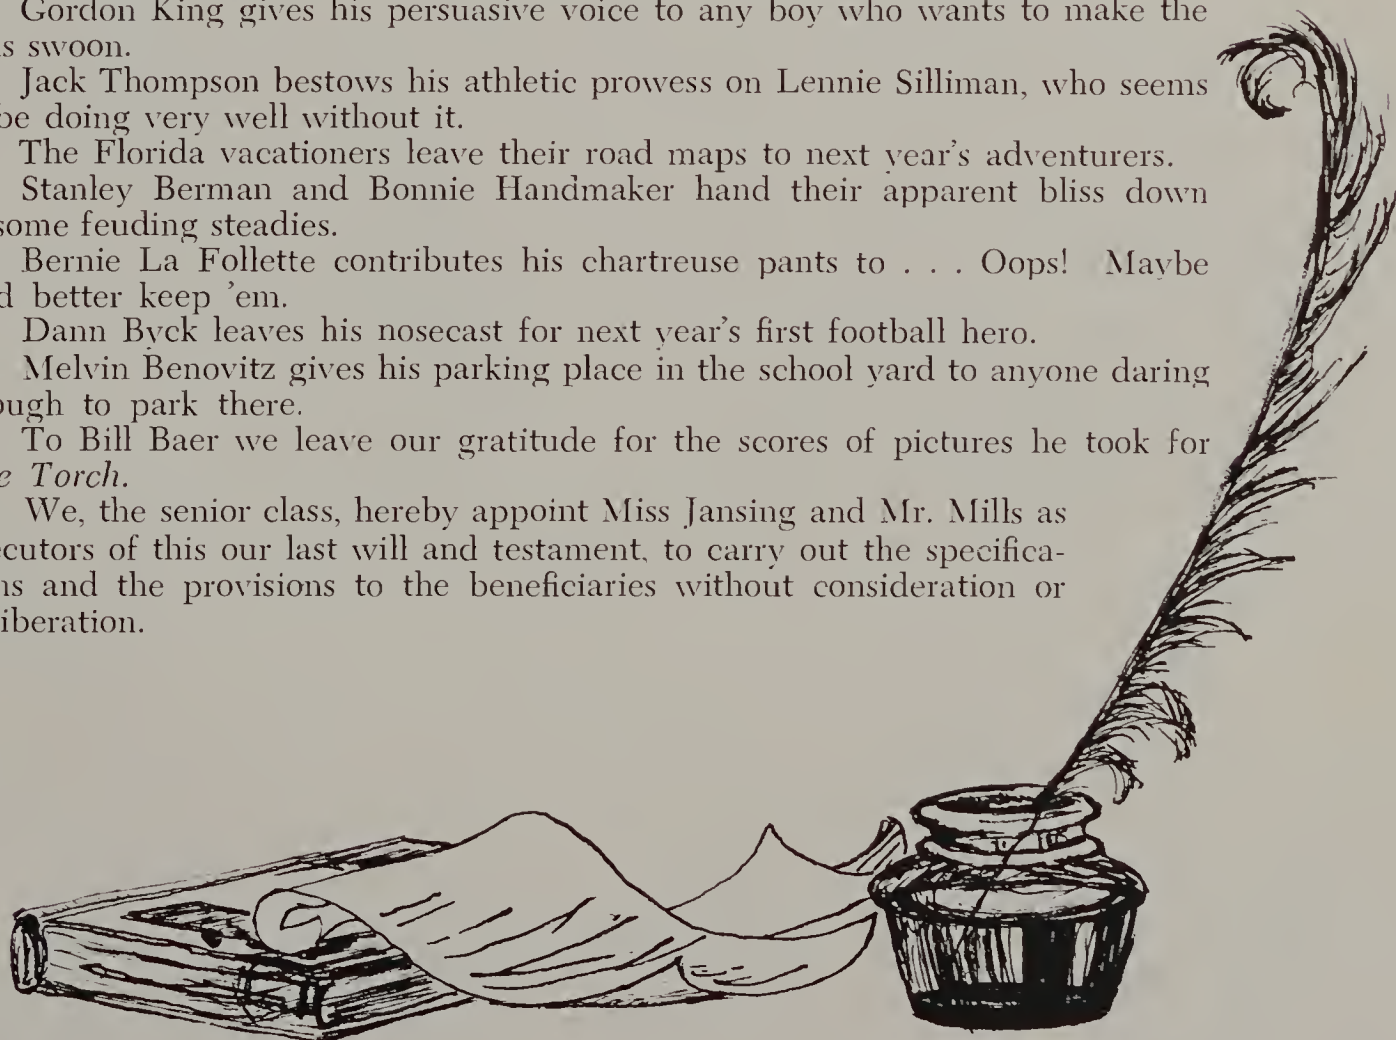

Bernie La Follette contributes his chartreuse pants to . . . Oops! Maybe he'd better keep 'em.

Dann Byck leaves his nosecast for next year's first football hero.

Melvin Benovitz gives his parking place in the school yard to anyone daring enough to park there.

To Bill Baer we leave our gratitude for the scores of pictures he took for The Torch.

We, the senior class, hereby appoint Miss Jansing and Mr. Mills as executors of this our last will and testament, to carry out the specifications and the provisions to the beneficiaries without consideration or deliberation.
